 Babylonians call to attack Assyria

• Later the Medes and Persians would overthrow Babylon

 Isaiah is distressed Since Isaiah 13:1 we have had five visions of different pagan nations<sup>(1)</sup>, beginning with Babylon. Now Isaiah comes back to Babylon again and once more there are five scenes representing five nations (a desert<sup>(2)</sup>; night-time<sup>(3)</sup>; Arabs<sup>(4)</sup>; a valley<sup>(5)</sup>; Tyre<sup>(6)</sup>). The nations are identifiable but are not so explicitly named. The first of the five visions is entitled:

The 'desert by the sea' refers to the area around what nowadays is called 'The Gulf'. It effectively means 'A burden concerning Babylon'<sup>107</sup> but is deliberately vague. Isaiah is moving towards chapters 24–27 where no names are mentioned since he will be referring to the whole world.

Isaiah's point is that paganism can give no help to God's people since they are in bad trouble themselves. Three examples are found in Isaiah 21: Babylon, Edom and Arabia. The people of God are always tempted to turn to the world: worldly philosophies, worldly attitudes, worldly lusts and impulses, worldly behaviour and lifestyle. 'Babylon' is used in the Bible as the greatest example of worldly seductiveness. Israel was tempted to look for help against Assyria by turning to Babylon. This is undoubtedly what Babylon's visit to Hezekiah<sup>m1</sup> was all about.

1. Pagan powers can give no help to God's people. Babylon is a country which is doomed to failure; it is entirely foolish for the people of God to link hands in any way with such people Isaiah sees (in prophetic vision) whirlwinds coming from the lowlands of Israel.

Like whirlwinds coming one after the other through the southland, it comes from the desert, from a dreaded land.

The interpretation of the whirlwind follows.

The prophet is seeing a vision of one people (Babylonians<sup>III</sup>) complaining that another people (the Assyrians) are traitors and destroyers.

The betrayer betrays, the destroyer destroys.

The Babylonians are wanting to overthrow Assyria. They call upon the people of Elam (Persians) and the Medes to join in attacking Assyria.

Elam, get up! Media, lay siege! I will bring to an end all groaning.

Yet actually one day the Babylonians would be just as much a persecuting power as the Assyrians. Eventually they in turn would fall at the hand of the Persians and Medes – the very people they are at present calling upon! Elam is the main city of Persia. In later times (the 530s) the Medes and the Persians would overthrow Babylon.

Isaiah is in extreme distress as a result of his vision.

<sup>3</sup>Therefore my body is full of pain, pangs seize me, like those of a woman in labour; I am twisted by what I hear, I am terrified by what I see.

<sup>4</sup>My heart falters. fear makes me tremble; the twilight I longed for has become a horror to me. He is in distress because he sees ahead years of suffering for Judah. The Assyrians are bad enough, but Isaiah knows they will be followed by the Babylonians and they will in turn be followed by the Medes and Persians. Meal-time Next Isaiah sees a meal-time discussion taking place. discussion <sup>5</sup>They set the tables, they spread the rugs, they eat, they drink. • Luxury – The meal-time discussion is full of luxury. The Babylonians want to give a Babylonians good impression. They are planning rebellion against the Assyrians and want Judah's want Judah's help. They call for war. help Get up, you officers, oil the shields!' Isaiah is to Isaiah sees something rather different. In symbolic vision he is to post a send a watchman to look out for what is happening among the nations. watchman - alert <sup>6</sup>This is what the Sovereign Lord says to me: to what is 'Go, post a lookout happening who will tell what he sees.' among the nations The watchman sent by Isaiah must be on the lookout for what is about to happen. <sup>7</sup> When he sees riders. with pairs of horses, riders on donkevs or riders on camels, let him be alert. · Faithful in his fully alert.' task So - in Isaiah's vision - a watchman is appointed who is faithful in his task <sup>8</sup>And he, lion that he was, shouted out, • An answer 'Constantly, daily, my lord, I stand on the watchtower; every night I stay at my post.' Eventually he gets an answer. · Babylon falls to <sup>9</sup> And look! Here come men riding horses, the Persians and with pairs of horses.' Medes The watchman appointed by Isaiah gets the news: Babylon falls at the hands of the Persians and Medes. And he spoke and said: 'Babylon has fallen, has fallen! All the images of its gods lie shattered on the ground!' Isaiah adds his comment. <sup>10</sup>0 my people, crushed on my threshing floor, I tell you what I have heard Judah's only from Yahweh Almighty, hope is in God from the God of Israel. There is no point in trusting Babylon any more than there was in trusting Assyria. Poor Judah will be like grapes trodden down and crushed. The nation's only hope is in God alone. The Christian In certain key areas of life the Christian has to look to God alone. (i) God alone is the source of understanding. He gives us a true view of life. has to look to

God for (i) Understanding (ii) Protection (iii) Happiness (iv) To worship

2. The world has no sense of timing (ii) God is our protection and security. When Assyrians rise up, Babylon is no help! (iii) Babylon offers pleasure and comfort and cleverness. 'They set the tables, they spread the rugs, they eat, they drink.' But its temptations always prove useless. Happiness and cleverness are to be found in the will of God. (iv) Babylon demands we worship its gods – but idolatry always offends the God of the Bible.

2. The world has no sense of timing. The next oracle concerns 'Dumah' – a town in Edom whose name resembles 'Edom' and means 'silence'.

<sup>11</sup> The burden concerning Dumah.
Someone calls to me from Seir,
'Watchman, what is left of the night?
<sup>12</sup> The watchman replies,
'Morning is sure to come, but also the night.
If you would ask, then ask;
and come back again.'

• The world has no answers – wisdom has to come from God The picture is of a watchman patrolling the streets at night. Someone calls to him, 'How much longer will the darkness continue?' The watchman has an entirely useless answer. 'I've no idea,' he says. 'The morning will come sometime but I don't know when. Meanwhile, the night is still here. Ask me again sometime.' The point is: the world has no answers and no idea what is to happen next in the story of the world. Our ultimate wisdom has to come from God.

3. The nations of the world are in trouble and cannot find it within themselves to save themselves

• The Dedanites are running from trouble in a war they cannot win

•They will be reduced to almost nothing within a year

• The whole pagan world is in trouble – we should find our strength in God 3. The nations of the world are in trouble and cannot find it within themselves to save themselves. The Arabs are an example.

The Dedanites are an Arabian tribe. Tema and Kedar are places within their territory. The tribe is in bad trouble. They are running from trouble but must stop overnight<sup>11</sup>. Some nearby Arabs from Tema – their fellow tribespeople – come to give them help<sup>22</sup>. The Dedanites are running from a war which they cannot win<sup>3</sup>.

But within a year (measured with the exactness with which a man on contract would know the last day of his service) the Dedanites will be reduced to almost nothing. Everything the people of Kedar were so proud of will cease.

The whole pagan world is in trouble. As Babylon can give no help to Israel, as Edom has no sense of the timing of God, so the Arabs are in trouble and cannot find it within themselves to save themselves. Isaiah wants to persuade us to find our strength in God.
